

Music in the Hair

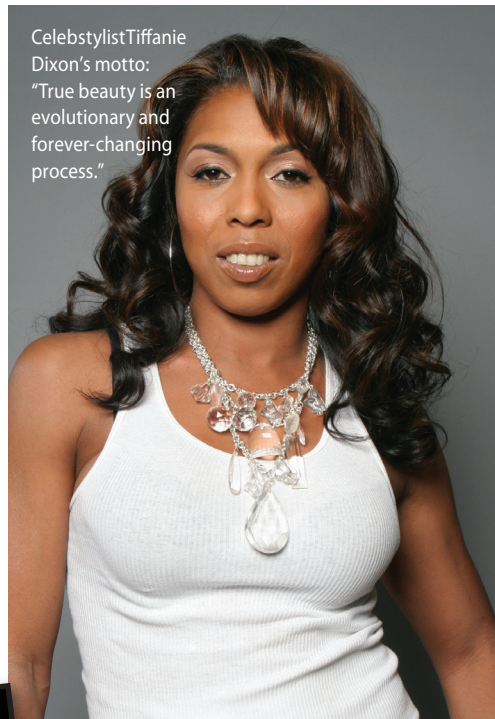

Tiffanie Dixon dishes on music's mane diva: Whitney Houston.

Superstylist Tiffanie Dixon has tressed some of the best in the entertainment biz: Mary J. Blige, Eve and Ciara, just to name a few. But she currently has a full-time job preparing to embark on an international tour with none other than the world-renowned singer, Ms. Whitney Houston.

"I met Whitney years ago when I worked on her daughter's [Bobbi Kristina] hair," relates Dixon. "She liked how I styled Bobbi, and we started talking." The rest is hair-story. "We're a match made in heaven," Dixon beams. "I'm one of the creative directors for her European tour, which begins in March. Whitney gives me freedom; she just trusts that I know what I'm doing."

Cases in point: the two fabu 'dos that Houston flaunts in her "Million Dollar Bill" music video. One look is a smashing sleek and chic layered shag that Dixon flat-ironed to a polished T; the other, a sassy style boasting big barrel curls that flow with Houston's movements. "I like to make hair dance," enthuses Dixon. "And I love hair with lots of volume."

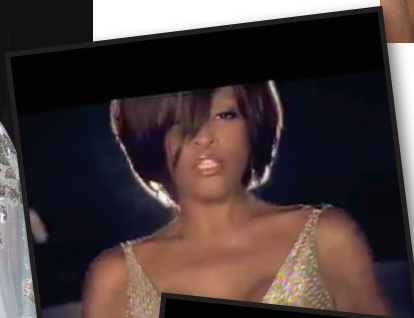

Of course, LP needs more insider intel. What exactly does one of music's brightest stars do for a good time on set? "Whitney loves Michael Jackson," smiles Dixon. "On a recent photo shoot, she started blasting 'Thriller,' and she got everyone on the set to join in and start dancing with her. It was fantastic!" —Alyson Osterman

Celebstylist Tiffanie Dixon's motto: "True beauty is an evolutionary and forever-changing process."
